

50+ Side Hustles You Can Work While Keeping Your Day Job

I am a strong believer of having more than one income. You should never put all of your eggs in one basket! That's dangerous and insane! Why not get paid in your sleep or for doing something that you absolutely love? Maybe you can't just up and quit your day job. You may actually enjoy your day job and don't have any plans of leaving. Whatever the reason is you're here, we can agree that having more than one income is smart (and easier) in today's world. Note: Some of the jobs listed below may not produce immediate income such as blogging.

1. Sell something: Poshmark, eBay, and Offerup are my primary sites for selling used times. They work amazing! Poshmark and eBay is online, while Offerup requires you to meet your customer in person to make the sale. Always meet during the day in a public location, with plenty of people around. You can also use Facebook groups.
2. Makeup Artist: I know someone who has learned mostly everything she knows from youtube. She practiced on herself and now makes a lot of side money.
3. Drive for Uber: I've personally thought about doing this, but the hubby was worried about my safety more than anything. Keep that in mind on this one.
4. Hair Stylist
5. Hair Braider
6. Social Media Manager
7. Video Editor
8. Sell at local vendor events: You can sell a wide variety of things at these events. Most of the time, you simply pay for a table and get to work the day of the event. I've seen people sell candles they've made, treats they've baked or furniture pieces that has been brought back to life. The possibilities are endless with this one as long as you stay within the rules of the event. I have a few vendor events scheduled this year to sell, promote, and network with new customers in my own business.

9. Personal Trainer/ Fitness Instructor
10. Event Planning/ Wedding Planner
11. Catering
12. Baking
13. Sewing/ Alterations
14. Rent out a room in your home
15. Open an online store or boutique (ecommerce): This requires more work than you think. It's not just about having a store with merchandise that is key. The most difficult part is getting people to your store to continuously purchase from you. With an online store, you must have an online presence! Websites that I recommend are Shopify and Big Cartel to set your stores up.
16. Bookkeeping, Tax Services, or Accountant
17. Car Washing/ Car Detailing
18. Brand Ambassador
19. House Cleaning/ Office Cleaning
20. Pressure Washer: If you can't purchase a machine, rent one
21. Have a green thumb? Help people plant shrubs, flowers or vegetables in their garden.
22. Babysitting
23. Caregivers
24. Consulting/ Coaching
25. Photography: Youtube is a great resource for learning skills in photography. This is definitely a skill that can be self-taught. I even picked up a few gigs doing this.
26. Job Search/ Resume Writing
27. Network Marketing: I get paid 50% commission, every week by running my own network marketing business. That's only one way I get paid by my company. Interested in more information? Email interested to kashia@thelifeshecreated.com
28. Youtube
29. Blogging

30. Ghost Writing
31. Love the night life? DJ or Host a few parties or events. You have to know how to hype up a crowd for this one.
32. Dog Walking/ Dog Sitting
33. House Sitter
34. Get a newspaper or magazine route. Besides newspapers, our city has a few local magazines that are placed at restaurants and other social places.
35. Dropship: This is where you basically serve as the middle person in connecting a company to a customer. A customer buys a product from your website and you buy that product directly from the company. You would charge more to the customer for profit.
36. Furniture Builder, Repair, or Upholstery: I absolutely love the show Flea Market Flip. The things that they can do with furniture amazes me every time.
37. Swagbucks: Get paid to search the internet.
38. Take photos and sell them: One of the top websites for this is iStockphoto.
39. Medical Transcriptionist
40. After hours answering service
41. Buy and flip antiques and vintage
42. Sell on Amazon
43. Buy wholesale and sell retail
44. Be creative and sell on Etsy
45. Design your own t-shirts with Teespring
46. Teach a student something in person or on Skype: This includes classes, foreign languages, musical instruments and more.
47. Build a course on Udemy: Here you don't have to be present to teach. The best thing about this is that you do the work one time, but get paid continuously. You can build a course on anything, on any subject. Examples are listed below.
 1. How to start a small business.
 2. How to start a blog.
 3. How to edit a video with iMovie.

4. How to become a profitable writer.
5. How to master Instagram for your business.
48. Perform a job on Fiverr or UpWork. These are online platforms where people are looking to hire freelancers to do a ton of different tasks. Examples could be ghost writing, making logos, editing images and more.
49. Notary Public Service: When we refinanced our home from 30 years to 15 years, the mortgage company hired a contractor to come to our home. He brought the updated contract for us to sign plus explained every single page. If you are familiar with this, you know the contract is THICK! As he explained what we were signing, I questioned him on his side hustle. He spent a couple hundred dollars getting certified for the job. Now he makes $75-$300 per job! The mortgage companies contact him when they have a job in his area. I'm seriously looking into doing this in the future.
50. Have extra outdoor space? Rent out your driveway or property. Some people live in subdivisions where they can't park their rv or boat in their yard. They would basically be paying you rent to store their rv or boat. This also goes for farm animals. My cousin who lives in the city limits has a horse that he keeps in someone's stable located in the country. He pays a monthly fee only for housing the horse. It is still his responsibility to care for the horse.
51. Virtual Assistant
52. Interior Designer or Painter
53. Affiliate Marketing

Golden Rule: Find a problem, a want or need and fulfill it. Your job is to make someone's life easier or more pleasurable.
